

Nathans Spiritual Legacy, Fred, is the third humorous adult parable in the Nathan Trilogy, which began with the 1997 publication of Nathan, The Spiritual Journey of an Uncommon Cat. Laugh your way to emotional good health and spirituality with Fred, the newest troubled but teachable tom whos motto is Never Let Them See You Shed. In this highly nutritional, easily digestible supplement for the soul, Nathan and Bob continue Freds life lessons, as the kitten learns (the hard way) that he needs his peers in order to deal with day-to-day problems as well as old family issues. Headstrong and self-centered in the extreme, Fred learns that while hes judging himself based on his intentions, others are judging him based on his actions.

When Fred finally puts into practice some of the kindness hes learned, he helps rescue a cage full of bunny rabbits, earmarked for ethnic cleansing, and brings the smallest one home to live. Fred learns what spirituality is all about from his family and his relationship with this bunny, little br, (short for small bunny rabbit), while Nathans life comes full circle as a result of teaching br what he learned from his original mentor, BR, whod been incarcerated across the street for sex offenses. In Nathans Spiritual Legacy, FRED, this newest tomcat learns: Anger, resentment and fear are all related. Anger is a result of not getting what I want today, resentment is a result of not getting what I wanted yesterday, and fear is a result of thinking I wont get what I want tomorrow. Old behavior isnt old, if you are still doing it. Instead of letting life affect your attitude, make your attitude affect your life. When your tail is on fire, recognize whether its a result of self-immolation, arson or natural combustion. We dont see things the way they are; we see things the way we are. A God small enough for you to understand isnt big enough to do His job. God isnt worried about your ability or inability, only about your availability. Determination is having a strong will; obstinacy is having a strong wont. We should measure our lives by their depth, not by their length. You can tell youre on the right path when its going uphill
